OUTDOOR SIGNS—GROWING BETHEL ISSUE

Maine Department of Transportation officials, State Representative Karen Brown, Bethel Chamber of Commerce President, Donald Bennett; Railroadiana museum owner, Edward Quinn, and campground operator, Ronald Coulombe, met in West Bethel on Thursday, Oct. 12, at the Ordway Campgrounds to review the removal of roadside advertising signs. The meeting was arranged by Rep. Brown because two recent removals of business signs along U. S. Route 2 by DOT seemed to be establishing a pattern of misunderstanding between DOT and local businesses. Also the state law regulating outdoor advertising could best be explained, so it seemed to Brown, by a meeting of parties concerned to discuss all details of the issue.

The museum and campground are only a short distance apart. Both owners have had signs along U. S. Route 2 removed in the last 60 days. Signs of both businesses had been erected within a short distance of each other on a section of this major artery into Maine from New Hampshire which has experienced a number of serious accidents over the years. Besides, Coulombe and Quinn have records to show that they stood to significantly increase profits or lose business according to the manner in which their respective businesses were advertised along this mile section of the highway.

The meeting failed to satisfy campground owner Coulombe, who has retained legal counsel and has started a petition to gain relief. On the other hand, the meeting did allow for all sides to be heard.

Coulombe and Quinn claim that their outdoor advertising is vital to the success of their respective businesses and that both businesses are part of Maine's tourist industry—an industry in need of boosting, not additional bureaucratic restrictions. They also maintain that speed and road configuration pose a severe safety hazard if their signs are placed within the limits of size and distance currently authorized by state law. They have records to back up their claims that state restrictions on their signs adversely impact their business volume.

DOT officials acknowledge both Coulombe's and Quinn's claims but defend their actions on the basis continued on Page Four

MYSTERY TOUR SWAMPS LOCAL MUSEUM

What happens when a AAA Mystery Foliage Tour lists your place on its itinerary? Ask Ed Quinn at the Steam Era Railroadiana Museum in Gilead. On Sunday, Oct. 15, over 800 sightseers left the Portland area following a foliage tour mapped out for them by the AAA. The itinerary, called a mystery tour, covered a route from Portland to Auburn, then Rumford, Bethel and Gilead before returning South through Evans Notch. About 500 of those on the tour stopped at Quinn's museum. Since this tour was an automobile trip with four-six persons in each car, Quinn said that the area around his house and museum at times looked like a huge second hand car lot. When the last visitor had left, there were 442 signatures in the museum's guest log, making last Sunday the museum's grandest season finale ever.

German Diary

by Ann Morton

Templehof Air Base held its annual Open House in honor of the 30th anniversary of the Berlin Airlift. The first thing you see when you arrive at Templehof is the large Airlift Memorial representing the beginning of a bridge between Berlin and her Western friends. The names of the pilots killed during the Airlift are carved in the base of the Memorial.

To refresh memories: in 1948 the Russians, in an effort to force the Allied forces of America, England and France to leave Berlin, cut off all supply routes to West Berlin. Instead of leaving the city, General Clay arranged to fly in 4500 tons of supplies a day to supply the needs of two and a half million Berliners and the American garrison. The British flew in 1500 tons daily to Gatow. These supplies were flown in through three air corridors twenty miles wide, which are still in use today. Along with essentials of food, clothing, coal, medicine, some American pilots dropped items such as chocolate bars attached to small parachutes. These pilots know as "chocolate pilots" or "don't know pilots" were very popular with Berlin children. At one point schnozos (dolls made popular by the Li'l Abner comic strip) were dropped with instructions to exchange them at a CARE office for a CARE package. The airlift resulted in an end to the Russian Blockade in May, 1949.

A major street in the American sector is Clay Allee, the only street in the city named for a living person. Gen. Clay was here last year for the Open House, but he has since passed away.

Templehof was built in the 1930's by Hitler as the headquarters for his Air Force, a communications center, etc. The building is nearly a mile long and shaped to resemble an eagle from the air. The major part of the building is under ground several stories in some places. German fighter planes were assembled underground and brought up on elevators to the runways. The Open House was held on these runways, which are now rarely used by plane. An exception was a recent hijacking from East Germany which landed there.

The British, French and United States military strength was on display here. We went inside various aircraft, tanks, jeeps, examined all types of guns, rocket launchers and other weapons. A highlight for the boys was a ride in a tank.

Concessions featuring peanut butter, ice cream and corn on the cob were the most popular with the German people. Groups such as the Girl and Boy Scouts, high school classes, clubs use these concessions as the major fundraising event of the year.

Another interesting sight: a flock of sheep graze along the edge of the runways, keeping the grass neatly cropped. They have been here for many years. Whenever the use of Templehof changes hands, provisions for the sheep are always included. Leave it to a "farm girl" to find out that bit of information.

Museumdorf in the Duppel area has intrigued us for weeks with its thatched roofed buildings. We walked there on a Sunday to learn about it. The contrast of our jeans and sneakers with the well-dressed German people bothered no one, and we tried to understand the German-speaking guides as we walked down the muddy lanes.

In order to answer our many questions, I approached someone with "Sprechen Sie Deutsch?" This invariably results in a wide smile, and our new friend took nearly half an hour giving us all the information we sought. She is tri-lingual, a teacher, and an active volunteer at Museumdorf.

Following a bombing raid during the war, a young man found odd bits of broken pottery in a field. He took these to a museum, and when time and money became available in the 1960's, studies of the area were made. The remains of a town thought to exist between the years 1170 and 1230 were found. A wide ditch runs North and South through this area: site of a well-used road. Oddly enough, a wall existed even then around the large estate of a local baron. People travelling through had to pay a toll to get in and out of this area. This seems to be the forerunner of our present walled city.

A Slavic community was settled inside the South gate, and each family was allotted space for shelter and a garden. By removing about two or three feet of topsoil, the outlines of several houses have been found. Several of these are in various stages of reconstruction. Experts from the Free University work with the many volunteer laborers in trying to recreate the village. On Sundays one can see weaving, carving, thatching of a roof, foot-powered lathe and pottery wheel, a blacksmith at work, clay ovens acting as a kiln. The "town dump" has revealed the type of pottery used and food eaten, and several wells have been found and reconstructed.

The houses were arranged in a horseshoe shape with a lake at the open end. The center was used as a night corral for the animals.

We participated in their "Thanksgiving" celebration where wheat was threshed, ground, made into bread and baked in a clay oven. A pagan, representing a clash between the peasants and priests was very lively, but we understood very little of it.

Trying to use my limited German vocabulary whenever possible, I asked a man "Do Ist das Brot?" (Where is the bread?) and was told that it was all gone. He gave me some that he was sharing with his wife. Next I wondered what the blacksmith was making, so I asked a lady "Wo ist Dat?" and pointed. She looked blank and shook her head. Then I realized I had asked "Where is that?" Instead of "What is that?" Shortly she asked in careful English, "Your first time?" I nodded, and we both laughed. The magic of communication!

There is a conflict concerning Museumdorf. The Americans need more housing here, due to rising expenses on the economy, and are preparing to build additional apartment buildings in an adjoining field. Any further traces of an ancient society will be lost when that happens. We witnessed a large demonstration against the American construction the first Sunday we were here. The riot squads broke it up, but we were concerned for a while when our bus was stopped by the crowd. The older German people can see both sides of the problems and realize that this is the American sector, but the younger generation want to save this record of their past. They have lost so much of their heritage in this century that their attitude is understandable. However, the construction is under way. I feel sure that the village itself will not be harmed in any way, even though hi-rise buildings may detract from the atmosphere of the place.

Today is full of the moon and it almost seems as though fall moon is best. Maybe it is only because in high school my favorite song was "Shine on Harvest Moon up in the sky; I ain't had no love since, January, February, June or July." This was more or less true for a lot of people as almost any physically fit young man was drafted or enlisted by the time he was 18.

I don't know whether to start with the wedding party or the birthday party. Seeing as the reception came first I'll write about that. We had a few neighbors and relatives come in the evening. Wilfred and Wilamena got married at the Congregational Church with Roberta Saunders standing up for Wilamena and Frank Gibson III standing up for his brother Wilfred. After a short trip to New Hampshire they came home to introduce Wilamena to some of our friends. Pat Saunders made and decorated a lovely wedding cake with the traditional bride and groom on the top tier. My folks, Mr. and Mrs. George Allen and nephew and family, the Ben Tuckers III came early to help with the last minute preparations. Mr. and Mrs. Everett Saunders, Roberta, Robert and Richard; Thelma Merrill and Gerry Shimamura, John Laban (we were sorry that Sue couldn't come as Christopher was running a fever); Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Angevine; Mr. and Mrs. George Guinness; Barbara MacDougall, Ruth Butters, and Mr. and Mrs. Stan Brown were all able to come. Two of Wilfred's teachers, Helen Berry and Jim Fiske; and friend, Mrs. Joanne Cole, also made it. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gibson III drove the newlyweds to their aunt's and husband's camp in Sodum, Norway, for a brief honeymoon.

Monday night, Oct. 9, Roberta Saunders took Wilamena out for supper and to her apartment until ready to go to the church.

Mr. and Mrs. James Monahan went to Quebec, Can., over the long week end. They went to a relative's wedding and stayed with Mr. Monahan's aunt, Mrs. Frank Hanley.

Mr. and Mrs. George Monahan, Brookline, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hasey, Augusta, arrived Friday, Oct. 13, to spend some time with Mr. and Mrs. James Monahan.

Frank Chapman was called for jury duty in Portland beginning Oct. 10.

Mr. and Mrs. Alden MacDougall had their wedding anniversary Oct. 10.

Friends of John Stearns might be interested to know that John is in the Mercy Hospital, Room 403, Orlando, Fla., with a heart condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Smith and two sons were Friday evening visitors of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stearns had Friday supper with their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Seames, Dawn and Ryan.

There are openings in both Day Care and Head Start now. If anyone is interested in obtaining more information about getting a child into Head Start or Day Care feel free to call the Center (836-3700) or get in touch with Joyce Crockett here or at home (824-2977).

This coming Sunday the parents are getting together to build a storage shed for the center to put up the trikes and wagons for the winter, keeping them in good shape for the children and cutting down on their wear and tear.

So far it has been a very busy week at the Center. The children have been using all sorts of new toys and playing many new games, printing jolly orange and green pumpkins with potatoes and tempora paint in preparation for Halloween. All the children always enjoy the old favorites, water table, easle painting, blocks, wood working bench, housekeeping area and puppets.

Julia Johnson is the Star of the Week this week. Everyone enjoys this activity so much because each child has a special week to share so much with everyone. Thursday, the children are going to the "great pumpkin patch" to get pumpkins so they can cut out jack-o-lanterns and feast on roasted pumpkin seeds.

Lunch menu for the week of Oct. 23-27:

Monday: Creamed tuna on w.w. toast, peas, tomatoes, fruit cocktail, milk.

Tuesday: Beef tacos and cheese, tomato slices, lettuce, milk, oatmeal and raisin cookies.

Wednesday: Link sausage, mashed potatoes, spinach, squash, applesauce, milk.

Thursday: Italian sandwiches, boiled eggs, apple sauce, milk.

Friday: Fish sticks, brown rice, tossed salad, pears, milk.

Mike Wilson of Howland and Steve Wilson, who is staying with his grandparents in Orono and going to school in Bangor, visited their other grandparents, Alden and Irene Wilson on Saturday.

A female cardinal came recently to Maude Harrington's feeding station for sunflower seeds. It's the first she has ever had there.

Saturday was Muriel Gilbert's birthday and she had lots of company to help her celebrate. Friday brought her cousin Antoinette Demers and daughter, Cecile, of Auburn. Saturday's visitors were five of Muriel's sisters: Eva Pomerleau, San Francisco, Calif.; Jean Wade, Rockland; Blanche Gagnon, Irene Charest, Lillian Lauze and sister-in-law Mrs. William Lauze, of Lewiston; and later on Jean, Al and Michelle Collet of Windham.

I've brought my Christmas cactus down from the dark, chilly attic. Either condition, I've read, is helpful in setting buds and I believe it is true because it has many of them showing.

I went to Poland Saturday in that beautiful rain. On the way home, I got a catfish and three dwarf gourami fish for the boys' aquarium.

SENIOR CITIZENS

OCTOBER 10

Seventy-four Senior Citizens enjoyed a very tasty meal at Sunday River Inn on Oct. 10. The following members celebrating a birthday during the month were honored: Nell Valentine, Maude Hunt, Edna Fallon, Florence Field, Myrtle Lapham, Ronald Stevens, Billie Croteau, Lillian Bartlett and Eva Keniston. The beautifully decorated cake made by Leona Flint was brought by Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Faudi and Mrs. Alice Howard.

Prior to the luncheon, President Faudi opened the meeting at 11:30 by asking everyone to recite the Lord's prayer. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. A thank you note from Mrs. Ferol Godwin for the bouquet during her illness was also read.

Get well cards were sent by the Sunshine Chairman recently to the following: Mabel Robertson, Stella Moore, Rena Abbott, Maggie Lowell, Dorothy Onofrio, Carla Bennett, Madge Vogt, and birthday cards to Phillip Faudi and Minnie Morton, Hanover. Sarah Stevens, in the absence of Elizabeth Lord, reported a balance of $473.40 in the treasury.

Carolyn Brooks thanked all the Senior Citizens who have made items for the Rumford Hospital Fair, and invited all the members to the fair on Oct. 19 from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m.

President Faudi greeted Lyn Bristol and Paul McGuire as guests as well as the guest performer, Frank Pratt from Mechanic Falls. Announced was the 55th wedding anniversary of Nell and Carroll Valentine on Oct. 12.

The next meeting is to be held on Nov. 8 at the IOOF Hall with Fitz Vail furnishing the cake since that is his birthday month.

Halloween decorations were arranged by Dot Onofrio on the tables and at the windows.

Lyn Bristol spoke on her proposal to the Bethel Recreation Board, regarding the present liquor store which will soon be vacant. It is her desire to make a community center there for the youth and senior citizens. She and two people from the Recreation Board and Robin Noll from Young Life are planning to approach the Town Manager.

The Manager reported that Elizabeth Lord would like more discussion regarding legislation from this group.

Ronald Stevens offered the blessing, and after the luncheon, Frank Pratt and Lyn Bristol entertained with guitar playing and singing.

CARD OF APPRECIATION

(Bethel Emergency Ambulance & Rescue Service)

The regular meeting of the B.E.A.R.S. was held Sunday night at the Bethel Savings Bank. The use of the new radios was explained by John Greenleaf. Mary Myers, Mary Buckman, and Mary Brown were appointed by President Florence Merrill to be the nominating committee for this year.

Dr. Kenneth Hamilton from Stephens Memorial Hospital was the scheduled guest lecturer for the EMT course Monday night at Telstar. The topic for the evening was Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (C.P.R.). Due again to his absence, Arlene Greenleaf was the instructor.

More volunteers are always needed on the ambulance, so if you are interested in helping others when they are sick or injured contact Arlene Greenleaf at 824-2744 or Florence Merrill at 824-2521.

Safety Tip of the Week

Hunter Safety—Bird season is now open and deer season will be opening shortly. Remember to wear appropriate color clothing and to look before you shoot. Don't assume a gun is unloaded—check it—make sure it's not loaded when not in use. Know what you're aiming at.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

(CFNC News)

Well, the CFNC is adjusting beautifully to its new home—the former Window Box. The cashiers have learned a new system, having graduated from a tackle box to a real cash register—ahh, progress! Oh yes?

It is hoped that more townspeople will avail themselves of the Co-op Store which provides a new system of taking orders for fresh produce which will be available every two weeks. Imagine getting cucumbers and avocados (or guacamole fans!) in the middle of winter!

Did you try the "Carob Froth" last week? How was it?

If you're interested in joining the Co-op, the set-up is quite reasonable. Come on over to the new Co-op Store and ask the member who is on duty that day. It's a sharing enterprise. Come in and place your order for fresh produce. Deadline is Friday (tomorrow).

Till next week—good nutrition!

"Time is of the Essence"

You have agreed to purchase a house or piece of property. You have discussed with the seller the importance of a definite settlement date. Whether the reason is personal or for business, it makes no difference. But if closing is important within a certain time limit, be sure that the phrase, "time is of the essence" is inserted into the sales agreement.

If this key phrase is not included, then either the buyer or seller can delay settlement for a "reasonable" time. What may be reasonable for one party may be unreasonable for the other. At this juncture, it may become a matter for the court to settle.

On the other hand, if you anticipate the need for flexibility, avoid the insertion of the "time is of the essence" limitation. This is just another reason why it is important to discuss the sales agreement with your attorney before you sign your name on the dotted line.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at EARLY REAL ESTATE, 60 Main St., Bethel. Phone: 824-2122, 824-2579. We're here to help!

TRI-COUNTY MENTAL HEALTH HOLDS CANCER SEMINARS

"Out of our fears come caring, compassion for one another." These are the words of a lovely mother who attends a group for people who have cancer. Some in the group are "cured" or in an "arrested" situation and some are terminal. "We understand and have compassion for each other as no one could without the experience of having had cancer ourselves," explains another member.

"It is so nice just to be able to talk about the dread disease of cancer without making people feel uncomfortable," "I am no longer alone"; "Strength comes to deal with oneself when helping others"; "I feel most fortunate that such a group is available to me." These comments express some of the thoughts and feelings of the group which has been meeting since May 31.

Two initial Seminar sessions were initiated by Dennis MacKay and Carlene Trotter of the Tri-County Mental Health Services in response to the acute need for persons with cancer to identify and explore issues with other persons with cancer. The hope of the facilitators that the group would choose to be ongoing has been realized.

In addition to the sustaining support given freely and wisely to participants in crises times, as to the wife during the terminal stages of her husband's illness, the ongoing caring to her as a new widow—there is a growing consciousness-raising regarding responsibility for one's own body, the possibilities of care at home for terminally ill, the opportunity to think through the rights of the dying person; a clarifying of the needs of the terminally ill.

A spontaneous out growth of the groups has also been a reaching out of members to patients and families of people who are not well enough to attend group meetings.

Since the group is comprised of people from Norway to Mexico, the meetings will be held every two weeks, alternate locations for traveling ease. If you know of someone who might be interested in participating in this support group or for more information, call 364-8866 or 743-7766.

Consultation services are provided by the group by Dennis MacKay and Carlene Trotter from the Tri-County Mental Health Services staff.

WALKING WITH JESUS CHRIST

Red Sox, football or life — seems to be all the same — cheer the victors — applaud them for they have attained the mark of excellence. But how about the defeated? Perhaps they feel frustration at coming to grief. Cheering the winner is proper and it is good to comfort the loser, supporting the one who is behind or in trouble is difficult; sharing in their misery is a privileged work and few do it.

There is one Person who aptly describes this duty — Jesus Christ, as He says in Luke 5:31 "They that are whole need not a physician but they that are sick." This statement is interesting for that's what it's all about.

In the sports game there are few players, either victorious or defeated — but its only for a season, they will play again. However life is not a game, it's for real — there are winners and losers, and when it is over there is no second chance.

This is where Jesus comes in as He says in Mark 2:17 "I came not to call the winners (righteous) but the losers (sinners) to repentance." Very much like the coach of a team, Jesus calls the players in perfect order to make champions of us all — a winning team must listen — learn and obey the commands of the leader in order to triumph — and doing so we are promised the victor's crown.

He makes sure to tell us that we are all sinners, Romans 3:23, and have come short of the glory of God — verse 24 says we can become winners or righteous through Jesus Christ by being redeemed — when we accepted the Biblical fact that Jesus already won the game and all we have to do is join His team by admitting we are losers and He is Head Coach. There are ever so many who refuse to lower their proud banner of pride and want to go it alone — theirs is a frustrating and difficult life while the victorious ones in Christ proclaim the good news as in Mark

16:15 — "go ye into all the world and Bethel too — preach the gospel to every creature."

BETH QUESNEL MEMBER OF U. S. SOFTBALL TEAM

A Bethel native, Beth Brown Quesnel, now a resident of Mystic, Conn., is presently in San Salvador, Central America, playing left field on the United States team in the Women's Fast-pitch softball world championships. Play began on Oct. 14 and runs to Oct. 22.

The U. S. team is defending their 1977 Championship title against teams from New Zealand, Australia, the Philippines, Italy, Holland, Canada and El Salvador.

Mrs. Quesnel played 80 games last summer for the Raybestos Brackettes, the women's fast-pitch national champions. The U. S. team, sponsored by the U. S. Amateur Softball Association, includes most of the Raybestos players plus two women selected from an American all-star team and is the top seed in this fourth world tournament.

In addition to teaching math at Mystic Junior High School, Mrs. Quesnel coaches the varsity fast-pitch team at Stonington High School. Her success as a player and coach led to a recent offer to sign with the Connecticut Falcons, a professional team. She turned it down, however, as their season, running into September would interfere with her teaching and coaching positions.

OUTDOOR SIGNS—

of administering the laws of the state, determined through the political process. They have heard both cases in face to face meetings and have ordered a traffic engineer to resurvey the road situation to determine if adjustments in directional and advertising signs are warranted in view of the safety factors involved. As a result Quinn's signs have been allowed to stand, temporarily. Coulombe's signs will remain down but a new curve warning system will be installed near the campground.

Rep. Brown's position is that the new law on outdoor advertising—dubbed the "Billboard Law"—requires amending and she has started to formulate proposed amendments for introduction during the 1979 legislative session. Besides amending the law, Brown has worked to minimize the local impact of the present sign removal situation on the businessmen concerned. She has consulted with DOT officials on Bethel's behalf on a number of occasions already and the DOT representatives have been very receptive, in this last case, traveling to Bethel for an on the scene hearing.

The Bethel Chamber of Commerce position is that additional tourist information services are required in the area of the Maine-New Hampshire state line along Route 2 and that reconciliation of individual business problems can best be accomplished by low key meetings between DOT and community representatives when certain aspects of the current law have been clarified. At the chamber's last meeting on this subject in August, there was no consensus or motion to have the present law repealed because of its good qualities in general concept. Therefore, amendments and local negotiations on special cases cover the way the chamber intends to proceed.

In the Bethel area, further instances of impending sign removal are known, if the owners involved take no action. Thus, the issue seems likely to simmer until implementation of the new law is fully carried out.

Gilbert Brown were all Bethel natives. She attended local schools and is a graduate of Gould Academy.

To the Editor:

Thus far, in my travels through the district, I have found widespread agreement in the need for real estate tax reform. And last week, I stated my basic position on that broad issue. If we are to maintain what is left of our traditional pattern of widespread ownership of land and resources, the reforms must come.

In addition, I have found voters willing to consider greater public participation in future land use. And these concerns range from wildlife resources, (which we all own) to forest resources, to agricultural lands.

These broad areas of interest were the subject of Gov. Longley's Commission on Maine's Future, whose job it was to recommend policies for the improvement of our state. I fully agree with their belief that we must make greater use of existing departments and facilities to help producers grow and develop. Cooperation of the public and private interests must continue, and the legislature should work with towns in setting the pace. With reason, balance and common sense, we can work out our priorities and directions. For if we do not, there are those who will—and we can't afford to wait and see.

To the Editor:

I have a few words to say about Paul McGuire who is running for the legislature in our district.

Paul and I have been fellow teachers for the past seven years, as well as putting in some time during school vacations on house-painting crews. I know that Paul is a man of sound judgement and leadership; a hard worker with an ability to relate to people of all ages. We have served on committees together where I have personally witnessed Paul's talent for cutting to the heart of the problem at hand, and coming up with a workable solution. As a ski coach, and my frequent assistant with baseball, Paul's ability to understand the problems of youth and act as a leader are evident. We have hunted and fished together, and I know that Paul has a deep appreciation of the outdoors and the rights and responsibilities of sportsmen.

I am convinced that, in the Legislature, Paul McGuire will be a real leader who will speak out strongly for all of us, based on the mature judgement he has gained

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to say I have enjoyed representing the people of District 63 as their representative to the Maine Legislature.

It has been rewarding to assist people in solving their problems by helping them cut through the maze of "red tape" with which state agencies are often surrounded. The legislation I sponsored in the Maine House all related to the needs and concerns citizens have expressed to me in the last two years. Each time I voted my decision was arrived at by considering what the people I represent were telling me through their telephone calls, letters, and personal visits. I believe I have worked hard to represent all of you.

My intention has been to keep people in the district informed with my weekly column, newsletters, mailings, phone calls and reserving time week ends to meet people and talk to various groups.

The Natural Resources Committee upon which I served dealt with all phases of wood processing legislation which is very important to all towns in District 63.

My second committee assignment was that of Energy which was concerned with finding alternative energy sources.

If re-elected I shall continue to strive to meet the needs of this district, including increased community control, a state spending limitation, tax reform and an amendment to the billboard law to make it more workable.

Thank you for your fine support in the past. I would appreciate your vote on Nov. 7.

Sincerely,
Karen L. Brown

Greenwood City

— Mrs. Colista Morgan, Corres. —

On this October day the dawn was luminous and all across the lawn the spider webs were shining. Like the stars the webs have been there all the time; moisture during the night made them visible.

Now each hour brings changes. Change is a measure of time. When autumn arrives, time seems to speed up. "What was, is not, never again will be. What is, is change."

I cleared another garden today. Looking at it, at fall advances, reminds me of an empty stage and wings of a theater. The lights are dimming; the actors have slipped away and no more is there an audience.

The fallen leaves have replaced the insect music of a few weeks ago. No more crickets to fiddle. The clocks of their short little lives have run down never to be rewound.

Everywhere there are seeds. I run my fingers through the grasses and find seeds between my fingers.

I roamed the hillside among the golden rods, dead and dry wearing their silver caps.

One afternoon Ruth came and we chose the Ames road for a walk. We usually go that way at least once a year. So we hung our cares on a tree. We studied the paths with eager eyes as long as we walked beneath clear skies.

By the old bridges we always stop to look at the brooks but there was very little water today.

Along the way October still ruled with fierce brightness and a riot of color. All those orange, yellow, and russet trees stood out like daubs of paint squeezed on a palette; pretty among the trees with fur on.

Our pathway led among the woods and we meandered aimlessly but noting our world.

A clump of Mayflower leaves, so green, was hanging over the bank of a ditch. We could almost believe that if we lifted the leaves we'd see blossoms.

There were warm gray boulders in the sun.

Two small pines shot upward from an ancient stump, so old it was covered with moss.

There was a gentle whispering of the wind and in one spot low music of chuckling water; the scene spoiled by the dumping of cans.

We reviewed the old Ames cellar hole and spoke of the time we remembered the house standing there. It gave us a feeling of being part of it.

We climbed on toward the cemetery through a trail that bent through the woods. How well the lots were kept. Five flags waved over the graves of veterans.

It was getting late now so we turned back before the day dropped into darkness.

We found the witch hazel bush on our way home. Its bright yellow flowers matched the autumn colors. It has an interesting orange brown fruit, usually two in a cluster. The seeds are discharged violently when ripe. I brought a few with me and left them near the phone. That evening they proved their violence. As I was talking on the phone I heard a snap and a pop and heard a seed hit the floor; when I looked for it, I found it three yards from where it had been placed. The seeds are pretty as they peek from the open pod. They look like two tiny eyes, white on black.

So home we came leaving four happy miles of traveling.

North Paris

— Eveline Barrett, Corres. —

What a glorious rain fell on our heads Saturday. We need many more rains before the ground freezes. So many are hauling water and washing at the laundromats.

Thursday morning I called on Mrs. Lulu Buck and found her much improved in health and going to her doctor at Lewiston for a check up. I continued on to South Paris over High Street and just before I got to Lawrence Yates house, two deer came out of the woods on the left, looked around a bit then loped up over the banking and across the stone wall. I wasn't in a hurry so I stopped and watched them.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kallnowski, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Card and Stanley Ukelele had Sunday dinner with the Lawrences. Callers during the week were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Penley, Sr., and grandson, Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Abbott, Fay, Karen, Angela Eastman, Dot Smith, Eveline Barrett.

Eveline Barrett, Doris Lawrence, Lena Dean, Marietta Penley, Myrtle Downing, West Paris, assisted the Collette family with the preparation and serving of the delicious buffet lunch for the "Pete" Collette's 50th wedding anniversary Oct. 14. All of the "old gang" was present except Joseph Barrett.

50th Wedding Anniversary

The South Paris Grange Hall dining room was very prettily decorated for the 50th wedding anniversary party of Charles (Pete) and Hazel Collette by their children. It rained very hard, but over 200 friends and relatives gathered for a delicious buffet lunch and a social evening with visiting, music and taking pictures.

Mrs. Collette was presented a lovely yellow rose corsage and Pete had a yellow rose boutonniere by daughter Anita and son, Peter. They were presented a garage made by daughter, Anita Talley that contained the many greetings, good wishes and gifts of money. They also received many other gifts. The guest book was circulated by Jeanne Marie Talley. Gifts were in charge of Dorene Talley and Tania Collette. The beautiful wedding cake was made by Marian Fields and served by Patricia Lenza.

The Collettes were married at White River Junction, Vt., on Nov. 7, 1928. They have three children, Patricia Lenza, Wildwood, N. J., Peter Collette, South Paris; and Anita Talley, Wilmington, Del. fifteen grandchildren and three great grandchildren, all present even the youngest only a few weeks old.

"Pete" and Hazel left their Lake Thompson camp for their winter home in Wilmington, Del. Sunday, Oct. 15. Eveline Barrett, Doris Lawrence, Marietta Penley and Lena Dean helped to prepare and serve the delicious refreshments.

Tax bills will be sent out the end of this week. The amount of money to be raised in 1978 is $252,384.01 compared to $209,514.77 raised in 1977. This amount may mean a 20% increase in the average tax bill. As the result of increased valuation of land, "woodland, shore front lots," plus a 35% increase in valuation of tree growth by the state, there could be a substantial increase to some taxpayers.

Throughout District 63, as in the rest of Maine, the overriding issue centers in the raising and spending of public revenue. It is no secret that the majority of voters want a curb on excessive spending and relief from burdensome taxation. They ask not for special favors, but insist on fairness in tax policy.

As I see it, the solution can best be obtained through serious application of three principles:

- (1) Careful public spending.
- (2) Tax relief for homeowners and renters.
- (3) Maine's tax structure must rest on the concept of the ability to pay.
